

Political Science: Current Events

Grade Level: Post-Secondary

Overview	To inform my students on current events, what are big issues in the United States right now, and how do others feel about these issues.
Objective	After looking at the two polls with articles/videos attached with it, students will write two paragraphs. The first, a summary of both the current events they looked at, and the second, choosing one of the articles/videos, write how they feel about the issue (what they would have polled) and why, also what others polled with 100% accuracy.
Standards	This lesson helps meet the standards under the United States Government course because it helps students know what is going on in their country, and that is a responsibility of being a United States citizen.
Material	Computer, URL for youpolls and the two particular polls, pencil/pen and paper
Procedure	The students should be able to figure the lesson out on their own through reading the information that goes along with the polls. The only thing I will give them is the URL youpolls and the two particular polls.
Evaluation	The students will show me if they have learned from the lesson if they write the paragraph with all the requirements.
