

Mark Seymour

Lesson plan

Rhythm Baseball

Procedure	You divide the class into teams, usually 9-10 per team depending on class sizes. You are the pitcher. Using sticks or clapping, you clap a rhythm, and the batter has to repeat the rhythm. If they get it right, they get to go to first base. If it is wrong, they are out. Three outs and the next team is up to bat. You may need one or two scorekeepers, which will help keep students competitive. Students love the competition, and they are improving their listening skills while having fun.
Objective	Students will try and get as many rhythms right in a row and try to make around all the bases as many times as they can.
Materials	<ul style="list-style-type: none"><li>• Four chairs</li><li>• Two pieces of paper for scorekeepers and score board</li></ul>
Grading/Overview	Teacher will grade the students of their understanding of the game of baseball and their ability to understand and repeat a rhythm they hear.

With Google writer you will be able to save your lesson plan and be able to open it up with any computer. This application is good for gym teachers because they all always moving around trying to find space they can use for their class.

Hutchinson, R. (1996-2011). Rhythm baseball. Retrieved from

<http://www.lessonplanspage.com/musicrhythmbaseballgameideak6-htm/>

