Using Scribd in the classroom

Scribd brings a new light to education and allows both students and teachers to experience something new and exciting. This website can serve as a versatile source for students to use while doing research and can be a great way for them to share their work with students all across the world. This site also can be an efficient way for teachers to share ideas such as lesson plans, field trips, and other classroom activities that he or she has had success with in the past.

Scribd Team

Asher Burton, Cathy Billingham, Adam Burton, Erin Bliesner, Jeff Cobb, Katie Lutz, Brandon Kresca, Grant Henry, Drew Shepperd, Sarah Schutter, Joel Reinhard

“There’s a writer in all of us”.

To view our group’s wiki site follow the link below: http://wiki.itap.purdue.edu/display/INSITE/Scribd
Scribd is a social publishing site where people are able to post their work on the internet. Scribd is essentially an online library and communication system.

Scribd’s simplicity is another aspect of this website that is appealing to users. To get started, you can create your own account on the home page of scribd.com. You will be walked through the short process in a matter of minutes. Once this is complete you will have full access to the numerous attributes Scribd has to offer.

At this point, you can begin posting work of your own to share with people all throughout the world!

What kinds of work can be posted?
- Books, Letters, Magazines, Newspapers
- Brochures, Manuals, Maps, Recipes
- Spreadsheets, Presentations, Resumes
- Lesson Plans, Illustrations, and many more

Scribd also has a blog for each item that is posted allowing people to make comments on each other's work. Scribd can also be a great place for companies and business' to advertise their work or products. Scribd is a universal web system, with people coming up with new ways to use Scribd every single day.

Scribd is a web tool that was launched in 2007 by its creators Trip Adler, Jared Freidman, and Tikhon Bernstram. Scribd is a free web based application that allows users to create and edit documents online, such as word documents, PowerPoint presentations and spreadsheets. Scribd provides an effective and useful way for writers to publish their work and fulfill their desire for self-expression.

What’s great about Scribd is anyone can upload work, not just professional writers or authors. Everyday more than 50,000 documents are uploaded to the Scribd in which they are read and discussed by around 50 million readers per month.