| Objective       | - Students will learn a religion that is practiced in the modern world
                       - Students will use mind maps to put together a presentation for the entire class |
| Materials        | Access to the library
                       Computer with internet access |
| Procedure        | - The class will be divided into groups of 4
                       - Each group will be assigned a religion
                       - Extensive research on the religion outside of class must be done by each member of the group
                       - Students will put together a brainstorming mind map on mindmeister.com to set down the basics to their presentation
                       - The mind map must be emailed to the professor/teaching assistant, reviewed and approved before the presentation
                       - Students will do a 15 minute presentation on their religion
                       - Students will also turn in a 5 page paper on the research they conducted |
| Evaluation       | - Students will be evaluated on the quality of the presentation and how extensively they researched their religion
                       - Peer evaluations
                       - Mind maps will be evaluated based on the amount of information and its cohesiveness
                       - Papers will be graded on grammar, clarity, research and the flow of the material |
